

Formula Conversion Fixture

The first equation states the relation between three squared lengths.

$$a^2 + b^2 = c^2$$

The squared terms belong to the equation above, not this sentence.

The second equation divides one sum by another sum.

$$x = \frac{a + b}{c + d}$$

The denominator is the sum of c and d. This concludes the example.